About This Game

New locomotion options, updated music, graphics and many more optimisations available in a free update.

A Chair in a Room: Greenwater is a tense Virtual Reality horror game set in America's Deep South. Drawing on elements of Southern Gothic and using settings of derelict towns, run-down motels and murky, decaying swamps, A Chair in a Room will take you through an investigation of institutional corruption, religious immorality and murder, which can only be unlocked by searching deep within your own psyche.

A calibration room will allow you get comfortable in VR but once you call the elevator, you begin your story as patient no. 6079 in The Greenwater Institute, with no recollection of who you are or what you did to be here. Dark visions bring your lucidity into question and only the doctor's supply of medication can suppress those who wish to haunt you.

Gameplay is a seamless weave of interaction and narrative that wraps exploration and tense horror in rich environmental storytelling to create something that is unique to VR.

The story is broken down into six chapters of around 20 to 30 minutes in length to allow for intervals in play while enjoying the story.

Good immersive game, but not worth the current price tag, would definitely get on sale.

If you liked this review Click here and follow for more reviews of VR titles. And Click here if you want to request reviews on other VR titles.. I am not sure if i can recommend this game or not \(but since i have to, I will recommend\). For the price I would stay away from it until it's on sale.

People say this game is really scary, but in my play through there was only 1-3 scary things that happened. The atmosphere didn't scare me like people said it would. The scariest part to the game is in the DLC \(which it comes with\). Which \(IMO\) is not great for a horror game.. Its scary, and fun.. Unfortunately after starting the game with 5 minutes in an elevator listening to poor quality dialogue, followed by 5 minutes standing in a black room, the first puzzle was chosen to be something you have to repeat 20 times without any prompting. By the time I got to that point I was over the game and didn't have high hopes for the rest of it. It's a pity because it looks like there's some interesting content in the screenshots, but the start ruined it.
