Lets make some food. Waiting for the Game of the Year edition to come out.. Hot Dish is a vaguely racist kitchen simulator where you click things to cook them. All your favourite nationalities and stereotypes are present. It's 35 MB though so make sure you have bandwidth room before downloading.. It's a little ones click cooking game. Not bad for what it is but don't spend more than $5 on it.. Lets make some food. I generally like cooking/restaurant games, and I tried to enjoy this one, but the game is just bad designed. It's anything but "player-friendly". The control to stir your meals is awful, which happens by clicking and moving your mouse which isn't even always be recognized by the game. As this is one of the main game mechanics, there should (must) be a better solution or alternative. One (easy) way to implement more comfort for the player would be to replace the hold mouse button with another key of the keyboard (x, c, .) and only move the mouse without needing to push the mouse button. - It could be solved so easily! And I can't understand, why the devs haven't done anything about this yet. So this is really a big issue.

Gameplay shouldn't be annoying. Unfortunately there's not much, the game else would have to offer. Graphics are boring, sounds aswell. The voice acting isn't outstanding either. I didn't come to see much of gameplay elements during those 30 minutes, except for unlocking meals.
